Modular Lounge Chair, Set of 2

George Nelson for Herman Miller, modular lounge chair, United States, 1960s

This comfortable two-piece lounge chair designed by George Nelson for Herman Miller creates the perfect centerpiece for any living room. This timeless statement of style is reupholstered in a pale pink champagne chenille fabric with a subtle shimmer by Dedar. The seating is attached to a freshly polished chrome frame.

Herman Miller Inc. is an American company that produces office furniture, equipment, and home furnishings, best known for its iconic Eames Lounge Chair from the mid-1950s, also designed by Nelson. As Herman Miller's Director of Design from 1947-72, George Nelson created numerous innovative furniture pieces, becoming the company's most successful period.
