Star-shaped Copper Pendants, Set of 2

Werner Schou for Coronell Elektro, pair of pendant lights, copper, metal, Denmark, 1970s

A striking pair of Scandinavian space-age pendant lamps designed by Werner Schou and produced by Coronell Elektro in the 1970s. Executed in polished copper and dark metal, the lamps feature a sculptural geometric construction with layered star-shaped panels that create beautiful reflections and a warm atmospheric glow.

The combination of architectural lines, reflective surfaces and rich copper tones perfectly captures the futuristic optimism of 1970s design. Both elegant and highly expressive, the lamps function as sculptural statement pieces even when unlit.

Their bold geometric silhouette and warm material palette make them a perfect addition to both vintage and contemporary interiors. An iconic example of Danish lighting design from the height of the space age era.

Cable length: approx. 80 cm / 31.50 inch.
